Hebrew and Arabic in Sirohi – Letter Comparison, a New Jewish Tradition
By Gershom Scholem

Formalist and Messianic Letter and Generalisation Table

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Hebrew letters described in boxes, or columns, or circles and boxes and lines | Urdu letters – Firaq and organic even really Messianic | Box the Urdu letter – seems Japanese | Draw Conclusions – Deductive Geometry | Triangle – first the boxed firaq Alif with Alef – like sex and dancing | Square – the process of sleeping together in cheap hotels |
| Games | Chess | Society | Go | Diagonalize above and call it about the wire, or about the uneven buildings | Movements like Belligerence, God's revenge – like developments of unevenness and even mass politics in radio news (This makes it Messianic in Prophetic senses with Sirohi) |

Last row for generalize – I generalize the table to mean a discussion on Sound and Fury for the night, which is then a mediation with the title and Hebrew Kabbalah which is a lecture on a topic – now I bracket the rest – one bracket is the development of Jewish clothing, another of Jewish dishes, and a third on Jewish games and all this happening together in cafes.
